BARBICAN —
RODOLFO DORDONI 2018

A series of comfortable chairs suitable for all types of interiors. The design is based on a built-in padded seat, open or complete with armrests, the rigid polyurethane frame of which can be upholstered in fabric, leather, either totally or alternatively using the two materials that highlight the enveloping shape. Now also available in bonded hide leather with carefully and lovingly fashioned details. The seat can be matched with three types of base, composed of different materials such as wood or metal, in two versions, which make Barbican perfect for use in different contexts. The wooden base with linked curves is a perfect match for important tables. The metal one, with its modern design, is perfect both around a table or used with desks or Console tables in a home office. The tubular one is light and airy, ideal for contract projects where sturdiness and practicality are of primary importance. Barbican is a polyhedric design that redefines the chair in a contemporary key.
