

Echo is a modular rug for exterior and interior environments created with woven strips with a width of about 30 cm each, which are sewn together lengthwise alternating them with cords in the same yarn.

The strips are produced weaving together cords and braids in predetermined colour combinations.

The borders corresponding to the strips extremities are finished with a ribbon in the same yarn and in the prevailing colour of the rug.

Only one colour combination for the woven strips and one colour for the cords can be chosen.

The textile structure of Echo is free: an intense stepping may cause a variation of the rug's dimension.
