SHUFFLE TABLE MH1

by Mia Hamborg Edition by Peter Hagen

---

Materials: Lacquered MDF, Negro Marquina Marble and solide beech

Dimensions: Ø: 450 x H: 690 mm

Colours: Black

Design Date: 2012

Story: Mia Hamborg gives new life to the old Nordic craft tradition of turning wood by combining playful forms and materiales inspired from old painted wooden toys. In this edition Peter Hagen plays with textual differences between marble and wood, and how the shapes play together. The shuffle table still gives you a truly Nordic and democratic experience, where you can even decide the form and height of the table.

& This fine table has one function more important than all others: To create joy.

Tradition: Norwegian designer Mia Hamborg (b.1980), BA in furniture from the Steneby School of Crafts and Design in Gothenburg has a passion for order, functionality and colour. With her joyous and playful furniture she continues an old Nordic tradition for wood turning and brings new life into the material. She compliments designer Sir Terence Conran for his acknowledgment that modern people often live with limited space and therefore making storage a design issue. She doesn't follow any strict design tradition, but the joy of life is definitely her inspiration.

Innovation: A turned wooden leg divided into pieces and splashed with colour is a daring and charming way of renewing the woodturning tradition. Her Shuffle table combines the playfulness of old wooden toys with another Nordic tradition: Democracy. The users are free to compose their own table from the turned pieces and with the measures that will fit their home perfectly, spreading the aura of joy.
